Introduction

The Central Office of Recovery, Reconstruction, and Resiliency (COR³) was created October 3, 2017, in the wake of Hurricanes Irma and Maria, under Executive Order OE-2017-65 to lead and coordinate disaster recovery in Puerto Rico.

COR3 is responsible for administering the billions of federal dollars that aid communities in quickly responding to and recovering from federally declared disasters or emergencies through the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) Public Assistance (PA), Individual Assistance (IA), and Hazard Mitigation Grant Programs (HMGP). COR3 manages these programs as the grantee from FEMA (grantor) for all sub-grants awarded to eligible state and local government agencies, municipalities and private non-profit organizations as well as some individuals and households.

As the single agency focused on recovery, COR3 ensures that the government of Puerto Rico successfully undertakes reconstruction efforts with efficiency, effectiveness, and transparency, while capitalizing on opportunities to build back in a way that makes Puerto Rico better, stronger, and more resilient.

COR3 is currently managing the recovery efforts for 5 disasters; Hurricanes Irma, Maria, and Isaias, the 2019-2020 Earthquakes, and COVID-19.
